Hi James. Actually he was based in Little Silver, New Jersey. He ran SITU (Society for the Investigation of the Unexplained) and published a magazine called Pursuit. I have several copies of Pursuit from my subscription, placed not long before Sanderson's death -- they're among my most treasured possessions.

Dr. Sanderson did investigate many aspects of Forteana, and was one of the first people to suggest that "vortices" of some kind could be responsible for UFO navigation and disappearances in and around the Bermuda Triangle, not to mention Bigfeet and other anomalous animals. He's also regarded as the father of the study of "Fafrotskies" (anomalous things that FALL FROM The SKIES), like fish, frogs, coins, or 100-year-old newspapers.

It's worth remembering that one of the most sensational disappearances took place near Sanderson's home in N.J.: A farmer walked across a field, away from his family & neighbors, and disappeared before their eyes.

Best,
Clark

The National Reconnaissance Office (NRO) is probably the most secret US intelligence agency that receives appropriations from Congress. Supposedly, the mission of the NRO is to plan, execute, and maintain satellite intelligence gathering activities and to a more "limited" extent, to assemble and collate satellite intelligence (SATINT).

The last I heard every aspect of this agency -- including its budget, its name, and the identity of all its personnel -- was top secret. It does not appear on any published or secure Congressional materials, including public and secret budget appropriations.

You asked "what the NRO can tell us about UFO activities." I have no idea what it could tell us. It won't ever tell us anything, of course. Quite likely, it will become interested in us for asking.

Feel better now?

Simple. The moon base is the first of a series of Holiday Spas/Global Warming shelters created to house the members of the Trilateral Commission in the lap of luxury during the Third World War. The plans for the place are all laid out in the Protocols of the Elders of Zion. The first development contracts were awarded almost 80 years ago, in 1913, to Count Zaharoff and another even shadier arms merchant. George Bernard Shaw learned the secret, but was murdered a scant 22 years after writing Major Barbara in an attempt to expose the plot.

The moonbase is financed by 15% of all money-center bank earnings, supplemented by satellite enterprises like international drug sales, romance novel publishing, zero-money-down real estate tape learning kits, AMWAY distributorships, and Mount Shasta condo timeshares.

A cadre of Freemasons built and maintain the moonbase. They were trained in zero-g underground facilities in Nevada, where they learned the latest space construction and nouvelle cuisine cooking techniques. The Mormons provide the entertainment (the Osmonds). John & Robert Kennedy discovered the plot and planned to turn the place into a celestial swing club. But the Mafia and CIA liquidated them and Marilyn Monroe, too, leaving only Peter Lawford and Jimmy Hoffa to warn off inquisitive strangers.

I learned all this whilst serving as a crypto-clerk aboard HMS Indefensible, off the Galapagos Islands, in 1977. I was killed because of what I knew, but was teleported back to this reality thanks to a top-secret US Navy experiment-gone-haywire at a clandestine facility in New Jersey. I awoke in this body, with Don King leaning over me, in the alley next to the so-called Garden State Alternator Rebuilding Company in Hackensack. Before the CIA killed me, my name was Otis T. Carr.

The only way to protect my life is to go public now. I make no claims -- I only say these things to encourage you to check them out for yourself. But if you send me $25, I'll say a lot more of these things and send you a tape.

Is everything becoming clearer?

Cheers!

Otis (Clark)

theme of alternative energy, what may power UFO type craft, an excellent and thought provoking look at the possibility of "matter transporting", the new refocused SDI, and an update on the Integratron. These are just a few examples of what this issue covers. Oh, did I mention that Mike Corbin speaks on his thoughts concerning an article by Jeff Mitchell in the last issue. (Vol.6 No.2)in regard to Mitchell's claim of official saboteurs damaging UFOlogy. All in all another great issue.

To all ParaNet users and members. With the rising cost of postage, printing and so forth, UFO Magazine found it necessary to raise the cost of single issues of UFO to $3.95, and as of July 1, 1991, the cost of one years subscription has risen to $21.00 U.S. and foreign subscriptions at $28.00 U.S. UFO Magazine is offering a special deal to ParaNet users and members. Until July 1st, if you decide to subscribe to UFO Magazine, and MENTION that you saw this offer on ParaNet, you can get a years subscription for $17.50 in the U.S., and if you are outside the U.S. the rate is $26.00. This is not limited for one year, you may take out as many years subs as you care to. HOWEVER, this will only run to July 1. If you need additional information, leave mail here, or Netmail me.

As far as why do "visitors" have similar features. I have a few answers. One is that what we see is controlled to a large extent by our previous context and perceptions. Since it appears that not too many people have had good close up views, it might be fair in my opinion to say that they are describing what they see in terms of what reality we know. It's difficult to describe something to someone when they have no concept of what it is you are trying to create a visual image of for their mind.

Second point is that certain physical features are logical for advancement and abilities. Opposing thumbs for grasping (no comment on how many fingers though) Two eyes for parallax vision. Two ears for binaural hearing. Method of ingesting nutrition, (once again may not include a mouth and teeth like ours). Method of communication, verbal and written. Mobility, a capacity for intelligence. I think you get the idea I am head towards. The logic in my viewpoint is that beings with six arms, two heads and 8 eyes are less likely than something similar in nature to the human form. I'm in no way trying to say that it is impossible for another intelligent life form to have all of the above different, it just makes more sense physically to have a like construction.

Last of all, even if there is a high probability that there is life elsewhere, why presume they/it is visiting us at all?

Remember the old 'Outer Limits' episode, where the millionaire financed the takeover of a local power plant...so some researchers could built their test chamber to explore alternate dimensions? They theorized that the doorway would open if they generated enough power and suddenly reversed the magnetic and electrical properties of the atoms of objects in the chamber, by reversing the high-current polarity. I know this is an old fantasy script, but does anyone see any possibility to this...or is it the usual SF's hokey play on little understood physics?

Yes.. I try to avoid wasting time arguing right now if they exist or not. I do not have sufficient proof to decide that, so for now, I will consider all sorts of information that I can receive, with the hope I will be able to finally have enough pieces to fit the puzzle of this phenomenon.

Considering all sorts of information is crucial too. At first, they may seem ludicrous, but I will not ignore them, for somewhere down the line, I may find something that links with that information. The more I learn, the more I know where to look, and the more closer I am to finding what actually is the truth.

I've given it some consideration too. I've got most of the xformers, sealed Westinghouse mfg'd, and would think it'd be easy to build the rest.

Hmmm, I'm still considering that the power supplies present the most threat. All else appears to be quite normal. Suspending electrostatic fields by way of electromagnets is a known element.

Me neither, Kurt. Einstein's entire construct of a universe bound by gravitons is under greater & greater strain, :-).

By now we should have at least SOME evidence of gravitons. But we don't.

As Sherlock Holmes said:

"Then there's the curious fact of the barking dog..."

(Watson) "But Holmes, there WAS no barking dog."

"Yes. And that is the curious thing..."

Graviton = arf, arf, arf...

Woof!,
